Author's Preface. Most persons whose avocations or studies are connected even remotely with Chinese subjects are wont to confess the need of convenient manual of reference for the purpose of determining dates according to either the European or the Chinese method of computation; and a system of comparison for the names attributed to years. months, and other periods is also frequently a desideratum with translators and readers of Chinese literature. The compiler of the following tables has thought, accordingly, that their publication in a convenient form may prove useful, although much yet remains to be done for the elaboration of comparative calendars, etc. that should leave nothing to be desired. the exception of the Cyclical Years, and the Table of Solar Terms. both of which were originally compiled by Dr. Morrison, and afterwards republished with | Pereira v. HONGKONG, WEDNESDAY, JULY 28, [869]

THE majority of our readers will have perused in the London and China Er. press the able article in which some recent proceedings against this journal are discussed and dealt with in forcible terms. This consideration, added to the fact that what it is safe to publish in Lon. mination of Chinese Dates, during the | don it is not safe to print in Hongkong render it unnecessary for us to reproduce the article in full, and we are further influenced by considerations which our readers will readily perceive when they consider the present relations between Hongkong and the neighbouring Colony We are gratified to learn by private advices that the case will be taken up both by influential London journals and members of Parliament, and confident that "right" will triumph in the end we are the less disposed to comment at present when no object is to be served. Meantime we thank those of our London contemporaries who, being less cowardly than some Eastern papers, have come forward in our defence

AT the opening of the Supreme Court this morning, the Acting Attorney General drew his Lordship's attention to our report of yesterday's proceedings in in part of it, which referred to an affidavit Guide, from which (with some alteration) put in by defendant and read to the Court, there were important omissions The learned gentleman read the report as

This concluded witness's evidence, and defendant's affidavit was read. It admitted the publication of the libel, in the interests of the public at Macao, where the said libel was capable of proof, and where he had instituted proceedings against the plaintiff. and had given security in $12,000 for prosecuting the charges which he had made against the plaintiff of bribery, extortion, and corruption. That enquiry is now going on, and the witnesses in the case were consequently unable to attend in Hongkong, and would not be able to do so for the period of one month,

Mr Pollard pointed out that this paragraph was deficient in two important respects, and we learn through the courtesy of Mr Hazeland, by whom Mr Pollard is instructed, that our fault of omission consists in not making reference to the statements contained in paragraphs 6 and 10 of the affidavit. It is our wish at all times to give a faithful report of all matters, especially of such as come before the Supreme Court, and which involve questions affecting personal character. For this reason we give the affidavit in full, leaving it to the public to form their own opinion as to how far our summary of the affidavit (as given in the above paragraph) falls short of justice. Mr Pollard seemed to insinuate an intent on our part, which if it existed would as His Lordship remarked, be equivalent to "dishonesty." The publication of the whole affidavit, as read in Court, is the best answer we can make to Mr Pollard, and the best assurance we can offer to His Lordship of our disinclination to be "dishonest" in our reports of proceedings in his Court. We ask our readers to compare paragraphs 6 and 10 with our abstract of the affidavit, and to decide for themselves whether there is such a substantial avoidance of truth and honesty as to justify Mr Pollard's appeal to the

Mr Pollard objected. Mr Hayllar contended that, in so peculiar a case as the present, where the evidence was all in Macao, it was most important, as to the amount of damages, what evidence should be received and what rejected. Mr Pollard said that, according to the course being pursued by his learned friend, this action would become the vehicle of about fifty libels which he was unable at the moment to disprove. It was all of a piece with the other attempts. But he maintained that such evidence could not be taken into consideration. His Lordship said that the A. G. had withdrawn his previous objection as to in-

Mr H said that he would not persist, but he had been under the impression that all questions as to the discredit of a witness, or as to character, could be asked. Witness, in reply, said it was most probable that he asked for the junk's papers : the prisoners said they were honest ships. Mr H. next asked why Gonsalvez, the interpreter, was in prisou? Mr P .: Don't answer that question His Lordship said if Mr H. wished for a legal decision, he would get one; but he did not see what connection there was with Gonsalvez, unless there was consuiracy. July 28, 1869. On the application of the Jury, the Court agreed to rise at two o'clock, in order that the Jurors might attend to the business involved in the arrival of the English mail. A. Marques Pereira, having been again placed in the box, was further cross examined. Had full direction of the case of the 39 men. The moment he read the libellous article he went to the Governor and asked to be suspended; and then he came to Hongkong to prosecute defendant. After defendant was committed, witness went back to Macao and stayed there for seven days: he had been bere ever since that time. Naturally there was a charge against him, but he had not to meet it just now, there was time enough for that.

Mr Hayllar: Have you not been definitev suspended since that time? Witness said that when a Government ervant was accused, he received no salary until he was justified. Mr H.: Having been pronounced bribery, extertion &c: would you have been imprisoned according to the law?—He wished the pronuncia produced Mr Pollard objected, and refused to proopy from the secretario. Mr P. remarked on the dilemma he was placed in ; he had abstained from objecting o many questions because he was auxious not to allow the Jury to fancy that he had anything to conceal. Witness stated that Mr Romano kindly let him have them, and they were sent to his friends in Macao, who published them. They were published to show the scandalous partiality of the Judge regarding him. On his oath, he did not send them for publication : he wished them to be published, but they were not inserted at his request. Mr H. remarked that he only wished to put in the pronuncia in mitigation. He meant to go to the Jury on the point. His Lordship observed that the pronuncia was inadmissible, and that he could not go to the Jury on it. There was a strong animus shown in the letters. Mr H. replied that he admitted the animus at once; but there were good reasons given for the expressions. And it was to the bona fides he wished the letters to go. Re-examined by Mr Pollard -- Some of
